Press Release

Scheduled eMail Reminders Added to eChapters.com

Personal and group reminders sent automatically on scheduled dates

San Francisco, March 10, 2003:

eChapters.com, a subsidiary of Digital Pathways International, Inc., has announced the addition of two powerful new features to its online application for small organizations. Scheduled personal reminders can be created by individual members to have the system send them eMail messages in the future to remind them of birthdays, anniversaries, meetings, appointments, etc. Similarly, scheduled group reminders can be created by administrators to be sent to all members or to specific distribution lists.

The new reminder features continue eChapters goal of making life easier for organization leaders. These set-and-forget reminders eliminate the need for administrators to keep track of when meeting and event reminders should be sent and even automatically include people added to the distribution list after the reminder is scheduled. They are very handy for making sure that notices go out at the right time even when you are on vacation.

Designed for chapter-size organizations to provide database and communication services, interactive web pages, and membership list management, eChapters.com provides unique time-saving features and services to small and medium size membership organizations. By supporting and facilitating sharing of responsibilities, these systems dramatically reduce the workload of chapter leaders, increase access to and utilization of resources, and minimize communications costs.

eChapters systems are affordable for even the smallest organizations with predictable, flat-rate pricing. The typical cost is between $15 and $25 per month (depending on the discounts applied), which makes it about the same as the cost of simply hosting a traditional web site. The first month of service is free for evaluation purposes and no long-term obligation is required.

“Your members and leaders both will love these new reminder features. They are so easy and so handy. For those of us who always check our eMail everyday, this is much better than putting things on a calendar that we may not look at, or not look at soon enough.” said Richard Matzinger, CEO of eChapters.

Interested persons are invited to try out a fully functional demonstration system simply by visiting <http://www.eChapters.com/> and selecting Demo from the menu.
